

Before: how DeepSeek handles the product today

Victory Skating / VSA 6-Month Double Axel Club. Recorded on October 10, 2026, without any changes to the business. This report accompanies the screen recording of the same session.

How the test was run

All questions were asked in the DeepSeek chat app (chat.deepseek.com) with Smart Search on and DeepThink off. Questions 1 to 7 were each asked in a new conversation, as if from a different customer, so earlier answers could not influence later ones. Questions 8 and 9 are multi-turn conversations, each in its own new chat: question 8 is the sales flow from the assignment, question 9 gives the assistant the product page link directly. The questions were copied word for word; screenshots show the full answers. The app interface was set to Russian, so labels such as the web search counter appear in Russian; the questions and answers are in English.

The model's answers change from run to run because web search finds different pages. A run of the same questions on October 9 gave different wording and some different mistakes, with the same overall result: no scenario ended in an enrollment.

Key findings

- No conversation ends in an enrollment. In all 9 scenarios the customer gets no checkout link; at best "visit the page and complete the purchase" or "contact VSA".
- The product is described as unavailable. A customer with a $350 budget is told the Double Axel Club is "invitation only" and "not available for direct purchase", although it costs $299 and has a Register Now button.
- The sales flow sells the wrong product. In question 8 the customer who wants the Double Axel is walked through buying the single-Axel club, next to checkout links for two competitors.
- The start date problem. Asked about November 6 without the link, the assistant cannot confirm and sends the customer to look for a contact form.
- Even with the page open, the decisive facts are wrong or missing. In question 9 the assistant reads the page, but gives the Bangkok class time as 21:00 (it is 22:00 after the US clock change), cannot say whether the payment is one-time or a subscription, and gives no checkout link.
- Invented details. "Victory Sports Academy", Zoom, an invitation-only prerequisite, a "$6 per session" way to pay, and a monthly self-guided plan.

Question 1

Does Victory Skating have an online Double Axel training program?

New conversation. Smart Search: 17 web pages.

Product found	No. "There is no specific standalone program exclusively named Double Axel."
Correct	VSA trains jumps online with private and group sessions; a free 4-day plan exists.
Missing or inaccurate	The 6-Month Double Axel Club is never mentioned. VSA expanded as "Victory Sports Academy"; training "via video conferencing tools like Zoom", which the page never says. No price, coach, schedule, classes or level.
Can enroll or pay	No. "Check their official app or website directly."

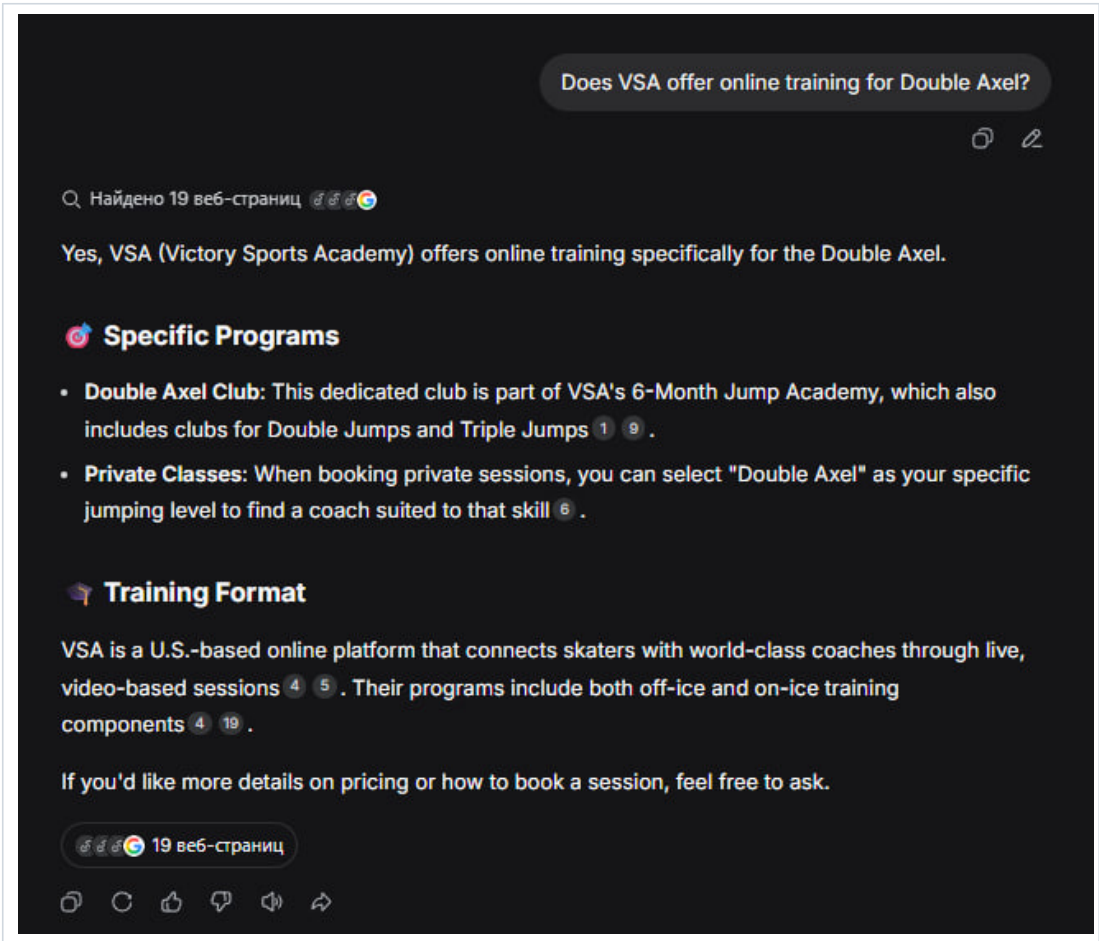

"There is no specific standalone program exclusively named "Double Axel" from Victory Skating."

Takeaway. With web search on, the customer is told the product they asked for does not exist.

Question 2

Does VSA offer online training for Double Axel?

New conversation. Smart Search: 19 web pages.

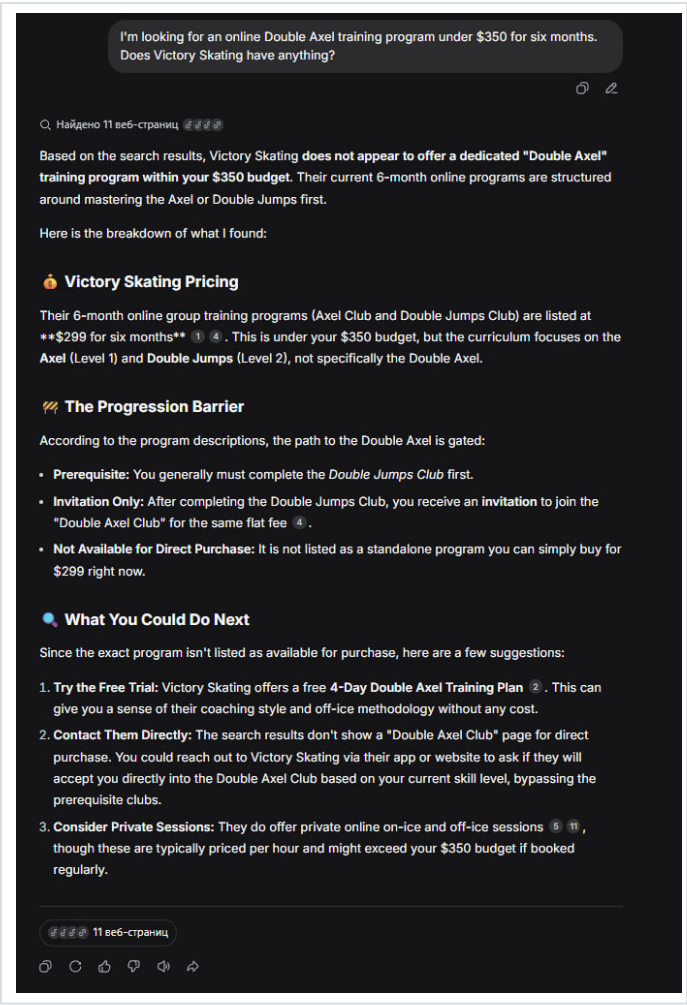

Product found	Yes, by name: "Double Axel Club ... part of VSA's 6-Month Jump Academy".
Correct	The club exists; private lessons can be booked for the Double Axel.
Missing or inaccurate	"Victory Sports Academy". Nothing the customer needs to decide: no price, coach, schedule, number of classes, level or billing terms.
Can enroll or pay	No. "If you'd like more details on pricing or how to book, feel free to ask."

Takeaway. The short brand name now finds the club, but the answer stops at its name.

Question 3

I'm looking for an online Double Axel training program under $350 for six months. Does Victory Skating have anything?

New conversation. Smart Search: 11 web pages.

Product found	Yes, but presented as not for sale.
Correct	The sibling clubs cost $299 for six months; a free 4-day Double Axel plan exists.
Missing or inaccurate	Claims the Double Axel Club is "invitation only", that you "must complete the Double Jumps Club first", and that it is "not available for direct purchase". The club page has a Register Now button and is for skaters already landing doubles. Concludes there is nothing within the budget.
Can enroll or pay	No. Suggests the free trial, contacting VSA, or private lessons that "might exceed your $350 budget".

"Not Available for Direct Purchase: It is not listed as a standalone program you can simply buy for $299 right now."

Takeaway. A lost sale: the product fits the budget and can be bought today, but the customer is told it cannot be bought.

Question 4

How much is the Victory Skating / VSA Double Axel Club and what is included?

New conversation. Smart Search: 4 web pages.

Product found	Yes.
Correct	$299 for 6 months; 2 classes every Saturday and Sunday, 48 in total; 4-day plan; $5 off a private class; 2 guest passes; equipment.
Missing or inaccurate	Repeats the invented prerequisite (finish the Double Jumps Club first, then an invitation). Says the single-Axel club costs $699, which is its crossed-out price. Presents a free workshop video as part of the club. No coach, no level, and "flat fee" hides that the payment renews every 6 months and is non-refundable.
Can enroll or pay	No link or next step.

Takeaway. The best answer of the session on inclusions, still without the billing terms a customer agrees to at checkout.

Question 5

I want online training to improve my Double Axel. Can I join the VSA program?

New conversation. Smart Search: 12 web pages.

Product found	Yes, "you can absolutely join".
Correct	The club exists; access details arrive within 24 hours of purchase.
Missing or inaccurate	Prices the club at "$6 per session", as if classes were paid one by one; it is a $299 subscription billed every 6 months. Adds a "Double Axel Monthly Training Plan" and says you can "schedule classes to fit your time zone"; the classes are live at fixed weekend times. No coach, level or schedule.
Can enroll or pay	No. "Choose your program" and buy, without a link.

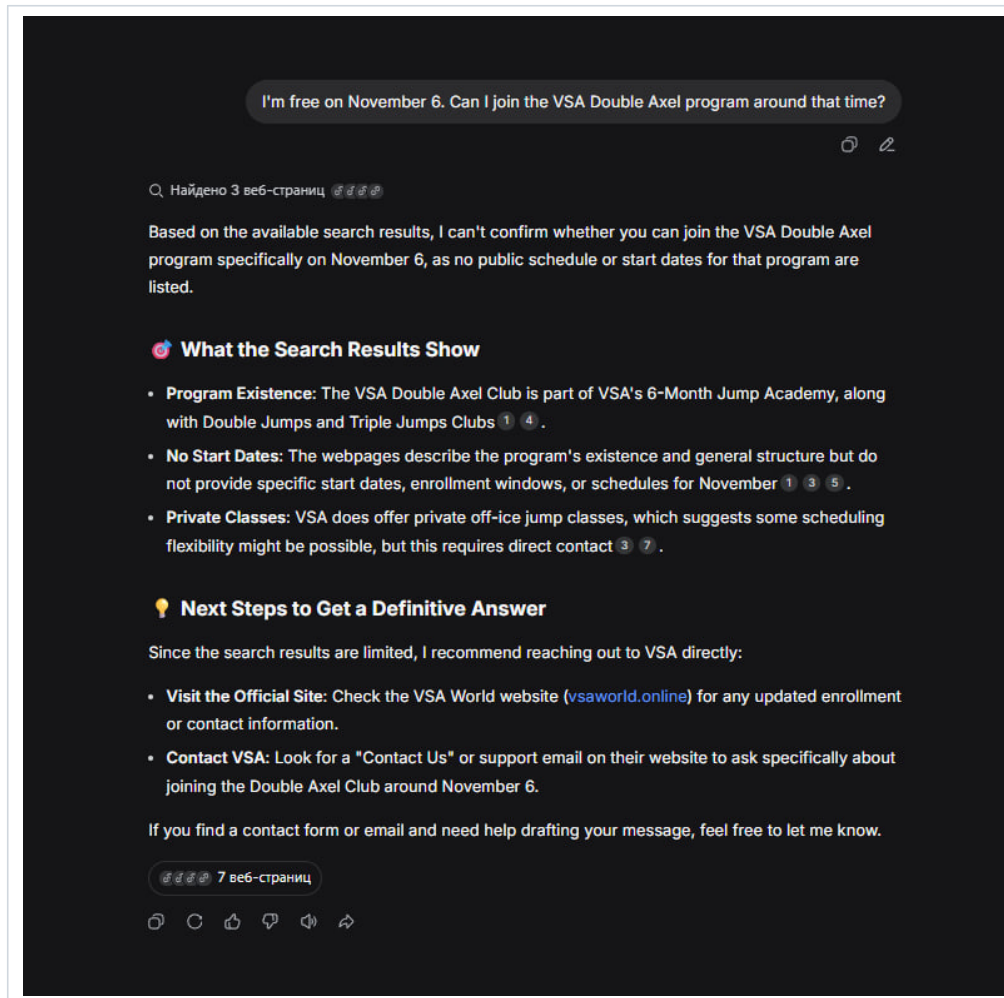

"Double Axel Club (Group Training): ... It's priced at $6 per session."

Takeaway. A friendly yes built on an invented way to pay: the customer would expect $6 a class and be charged $299 with auto-renewal.

Question 6

I'm free on November 6. Can I join the VSA Double Axel program around that time?

New conversation. Smart Search: 3 web pages.

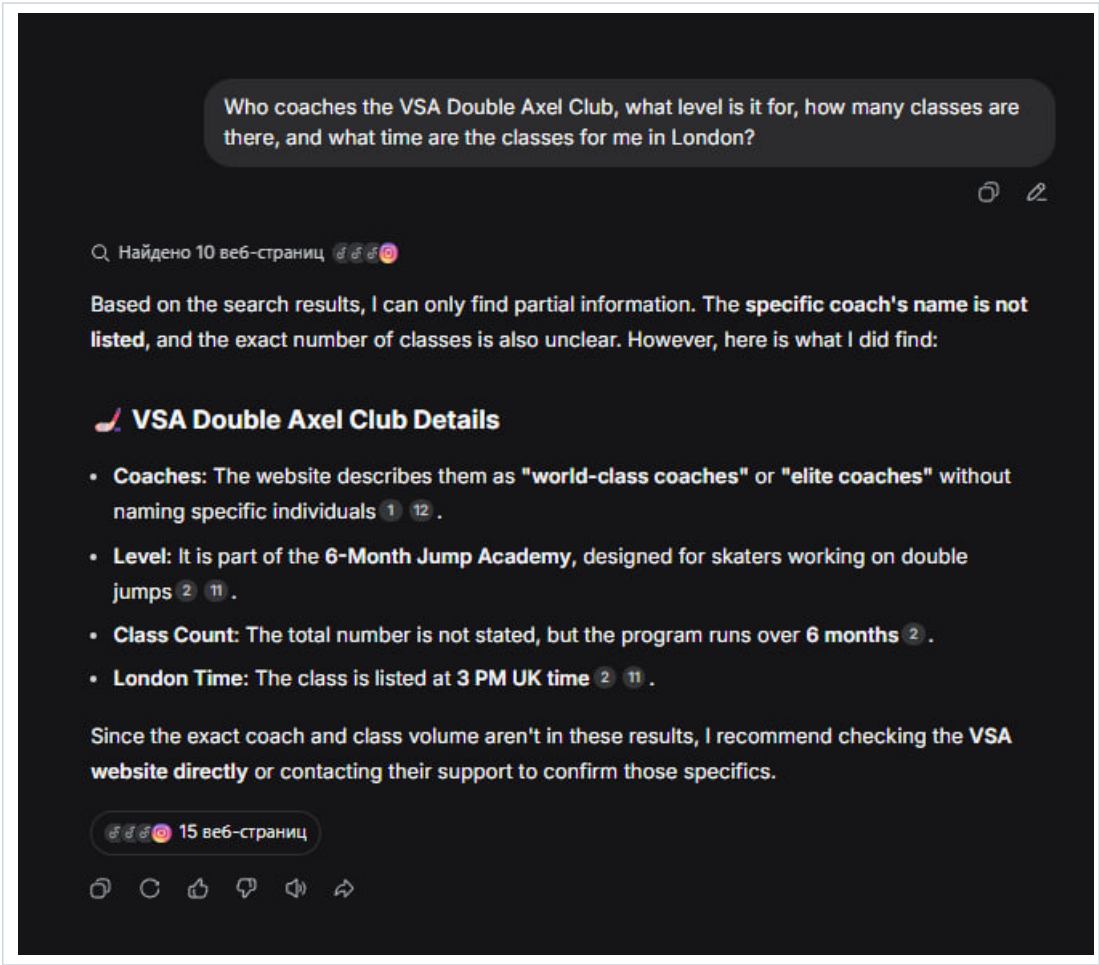

Product found	Yes, but the question goes unanswered.
Correct	The club is part of the 6-month program; private classes exist.
Missing or inaccurate	"I can't confirm whether you can join ... on November 6, as no public schedule or start dates for that program are listed." Never says that the club runs every weekend and that the next sessions are November 7 and 8.
Can enroll or pay	No. Look for a contact form; offers to draft an email.

Takeaway. This is the case the assignment describes: without the business rule that the club can be joined any time, the assistant cannot say yes.

Question 7

Who coaches the VSA Double Axel Club, what level is it for, how many classes are there, and what time are the classes for me in London?

New conversation. Smart Search: 10 web pages.

Product found	Yes.
Correct	3 PM UK time.
Missing or inaccurate	Coach "not listed" (the page names Coach Marta). Class count "not stated" (the page says 48). Level given as "for skaters working on double jumps" instead of Level 3 for skaters already landing them. The London time is copied from the page, not computed for the date.
Can enroll or pay	No. Check the website or contact support.

Takeaway. Three of the four facts the customer asked for are missing or vague, although all of them are on the product page.

Question 8: the sales flow from the assignment

One new conversation, three messages in a row.

Message 1: I want to improve my Double Axel and I'm looking for an online program under $350.

I want to improve my Double Axel and I'm looking for an online program under $350.

Найдено 18 веб-страниц

I searched for an online Double Axel program under $350, but the available information is limited. The most relevant option I found exceeds your budget, and many search results are either for in-person camps or general resources rather than dedicated online courses.

The Closest Online Option (Over Budget)

The Axel Club by Victory Skating appears to be a structured online program, though its price is above your limit.

- Program Details: It's a 6-month live group class package focused on mastering the Axel, with a progression into double jumps. Classes are held twice weekly (Saturday and Sunday) for 45 minutes each.
- Price: The 6-month package costs $699*, with a promotional price listed at *$299/6 months. It is unclear how long the promotional price lasts.

Other Online Training Resources

Several other platforms offer online off-ice training that could support your Double Axel, but they either don't disclose pricing publicly or function as broader resources:

- FLEXAFIT: Offers live online off-ice jump classes and self-paced courses focused on figure skater strength and jump technique. Pricing is not shown in the search results.
- iCoachSkating: This appears to be a video library with technical breakdowns from elite coaches, including dedicated Double Axel lessons. It may be a subscription or per-video service, but costs aren't listed.
- Ryabinin Camps: Provides live online group jump technique classes via Zoom, covering everything from Axel to quadruple jumps. Again, specific pricing isn't available in the results.
- Ebook Resource: A lower-cost alternative is an ebook titled Jump Technique Basics: Master Figure Skating Jumps priced at €15.99, which includes a section on Double Axel tips and exercise progressions.

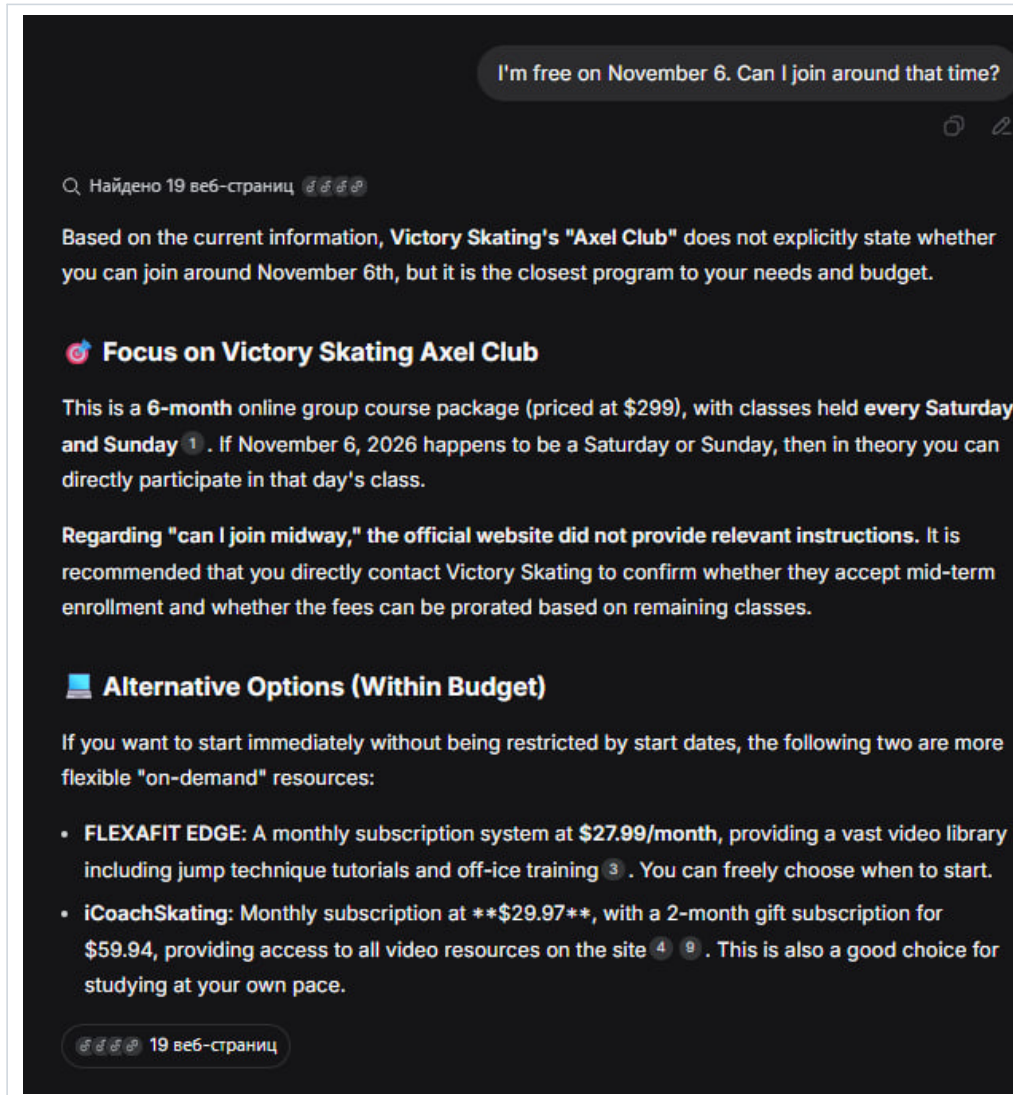

A Suggestion for Your Search

Since a specific program under $350 wasn't clearly identifiable from the search results, you might have better luck by:

- Checking the platforms above directly: Pricing for FLEXAFIT, iCoachSkating, and Ryabinin Camps might be available on their websites.
- Contacting Victory Skating: You could ask if they offer shorter-term or payment plans for the Axel Club.
- Combining resources: You could use a technique-focused ebook like the one mentioned alongside a general off-ice strength program to target the specific physical demands of the Double Axel.

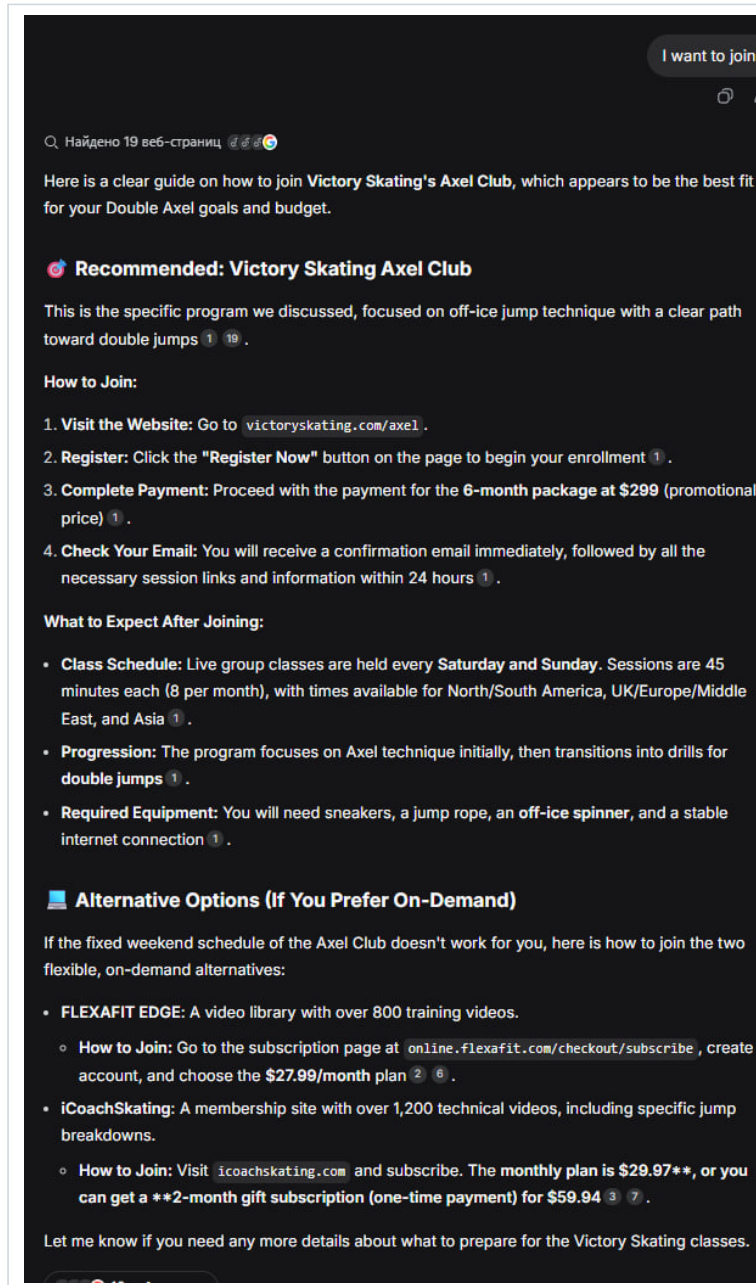

Smart Search: 18 web pages. The Double Axel Club is not found. The closest option is the single-Axel club, first called over budget ($699, the crossed-out price) and then "$299 promotional". Lists competitors (FLEXAFIT, iCoachSkating, Ryabinin Camps) and an ebook.

Message 2: I'm free on November 6. Can I join around that time?

Smart Search: 19 web pages. "If November 6, 2026 happens to be a Saturday or Sunday, then in theory you can directly participate"; November 6 is a Friday. Mid-course joining is left to "contact Victory Skating". Recommends two competitors as more flexible.

Message 3: I want to join.

Smart Search: 19 web pages. Step-by-step instructions to buy the single-Axel club at victoryskating.com/axel, followed by checkout links and prices for two competitors. The Double Axel Club is never offered.

Question 8: review

Product found	No. The conversation is about the single-Axel club and competitors.
Correct	The weekend schedule and 24-hour access, but for the wrong club.
Missing or inaccurate	The Double Axel Club is missed entirely. The $699 crossed-out price is quoted as a price. The assistant cannot work out that November 6 is a Friday. Competitors get direct checkout links.
Can enroll or pay	No. The customer is guided to buy a program for a different jump, or a competitor's subscription.

"Here is a clear guide on how to join Victory Skating's Axel Club, which appears to be the best fit for your Double Axel goals and budget."

Takeaway. This is the assignment's own sales scenario. A customer whose request matches the Double Axel Club exactly ends up buying the wrong program or going to a competitor.

Question 9: with the product page link

One new conversation, five messages in a row. The first message contains the product URL.

Message 1: <https://victoryskating.com/doubleaxel> Tell me about this program: price, coach, schedule, number of classes and level.

<https://victoryskating.com/doubleaxel> Tell me about this program: price, coach, schedule, number of classes and level.

Based on the information on the page, here are the key details about the "6-Month Double Axel Club" program:

Price

- The cost is a flat fee of $299 for 6 months*, which works out to about *$6 per class. The page also shows a crossed-out price of $699.
- After completing this club, you get an invitation to the Triple Jumps Club for the same flat fee.

Coach

- The program is led by Coach Marta. She has international experience as both a skater and coach, having trained in Poland and Finland, and holds a degree in Physical Education.

Schedule

- Classes are held every Saturday and Sunday.
- Each session lasts 45 minutes.
- There are 8 sessions per month.
- The times are listed for different regions:
 - North & South America: 7:00 AM PDT / 8:00 AM MDT / 9:00 AM CDT / 10:00 AM EDT
 - UK, Europe & Middle East: 3:00 PM UK time / 4:00 PM CEST
 - Asia: 9:00 PM ICT

Number of Classes

- You get 2 live group classes per weekend.
- Over the 6-month period, this totals 48 live group classes.

Level

- This is a Level 3 program.
- It is designed for skaters who have already achieved proficiency in double jumps off-ice and are ready to transition to the 2Axel off-ice. The goal is to master the double axel and prepare for triple jumps.

The program focuses on technique development, power, rotational speed, and structured progression over the 6 months. You would need sneakers, a jump rope, an off-ice spinner, a stable internet connection, and some space.

The page is read this time. Correct: $299 for 6 months (crossed-out $699), Coach Marta, Saturdays and Sundays, 45 minutes, 48 classes, Level 3. The times are copied with the page's summer labels (7:00 AM PDT, 9:00 PM ICT).

Message 2: I'm free on November 6. Can I join around that time?

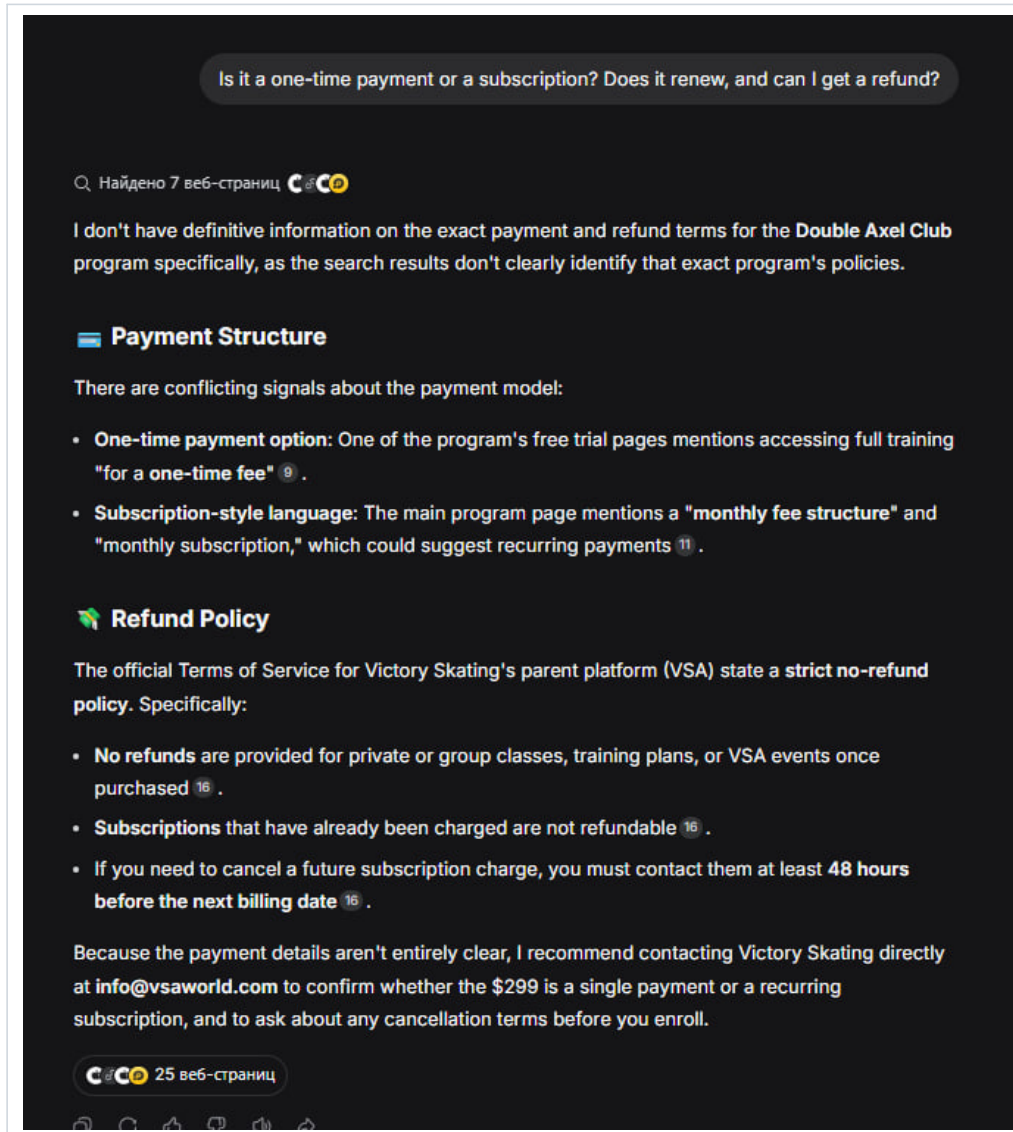

Correct: the program "runs continuously" and the first sessions "would probably be on November 7 and 8", inferred from the page's "Get started this weekend".

Message 3: What time would the classes be for me in Bangkok in November?

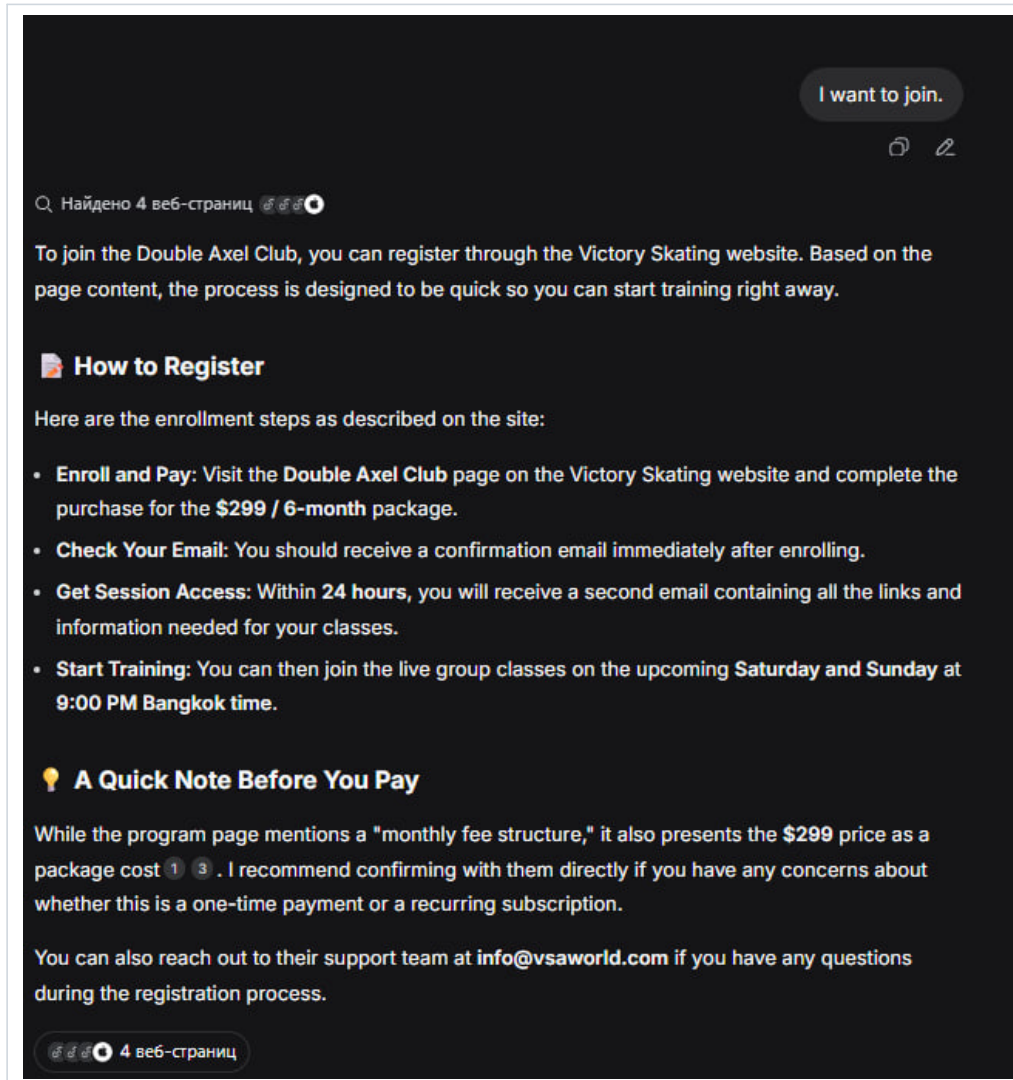

Wrong: "9:00 PM to 9:45 PM ... Bangkok uses ICT all year and does not observe daylight saving changes, this schedule remains consistent in November." The class is set in Los Angeles time; after the US clock change on November 1 it is 22:00 in Bangkok.

Message 4: Is it a one-time payment or a subscription? Does it renew, and can I get a refund?

"I don't have definitive information." Notes conflicting "one-time fee" and "monthly subscription" wording, finds VSA's general no-refund terms, and recommends emailing VSA to ask whether the $299 recurs. The checkout says: $299 every 6 months, auto-renewing, non-refundable.

Message 5: I want to join.

No checkout link: "visit the Double Axel Club page ... and complete the purchase". Repeats the 9:00 PM Bangkok time and asks the customer to confirm with VSA whether the payment is recurring before paying.

Question 9: review

Product found	Yes. With the URL the page is read, which did not happen in the October 9 run (the site refused the request).
Correct	Price, coach, schedule days, 48 classes, Level 3, and that the club can be joined on November 7 and 8.
Missing or inaccurate	The local time is copied, not computed: 21:00 in Bangkok instead of 22:00 in November. Billing is left unclear: one-time or recurring is not answered, although the checkout states it. No checkout link.
Can enroll or pay	No. The customer must find the page, pay without knowing the billing terms, and would join an hour early.

"Since Bangkok uses ICT all year and does not observe daylight saving changes, this schedule remains consistent in November."

Takeaway. Giving the assistant the exact URL helps with facts printed on the page, but not with what needs business rules or the checkout: the local time on a given date, the billing terms, and an actual link to pay.
